Gender and Development Trends in Uganda

Health
A summary from the WHO identified several key areas of concern, for women in Uganda: teenage pregnancy rates are among the highest in sub-Saharan Africa; adolescent girls are four times more vulnerable to HIV infection than their male counterparts; HIV prevalence among women is high (7.5%) compared with 5% among men; and married women cannot refuse sex or cannot ask their husbands to use condoms (WHO Regional Office for Africa, 2014).

The HIV epidemic in Uganda disproportionately affects young women. In 2014, HIV prevalence among young people aged 15-24 in Uganda was estimated at 3.72% for women and 2.32% for men (AVERT, 2016).

Education
In 2010, females accounted for 46.6 percent of total students in secondary schools in Uganda. However, only 27.58 percent of girls completed secondary school in 2013, compared to 31.13 percent of boys (Okudi, 2016).
Economy
Young women in Uganda have more difficulties finding paid work than young men; according to a 2016 UNDP report, the current youth unemployment rate stands at 7.0% for females and 6.1% for males (p. 6).

The same report attributes women’s difficulties in particular, to “the difficult transition to working life; limited access to information channels and job search mechanisms; lower pay in the informal economy; unprotected low-skill jobs as well as lack of access to training, social protection and other resources” (UNDP, 2016, p. 5).

Governance
Women’s representation in Parliament in Uganda, has risen significantly, from 14% in 1989-1996, to 35% in 2011, with a slight decrease to 34% in 2015.

Human Rights
Defilement was one of the top crimes committed and reported in Uganda in 2014; yet, the conviction rate for rape and defilement cases stood at 0.8% and 1.8% respectively (UNDP, 2016).
